Natural Ingredients for Tasty Foods

Beverages

Functional beverages

Fueled by consumer demand for food and beverages with health benefits, functional beverages are becoming increasingly popular.

Color plays an important role in highlighting the function and naturalness of these products. But added ingredients like vitamins, minerals and botanicals can affect stability. Our application centers do extensive research to find the best match for your products from our wide portfolio of natural food colors and formulations.

Juice-based beverages

Juice based products meet consumer demand for natural and they're often perceived as a healthier alternative to similar products that aren't juice based.

Natural food colors add to this natural appeal. From creative blends for food-explorers to healthy products for the health-conscious consumer, we can help you find the ideal color solution to strengthen your product and the concept behind it.

Powdered beverages

Convenient, on-the-go products are a great fit for busy lifestyles. Whether it's a functional beverage or a refreshing lemonade, sensory appeal is key to success.

With our range of I-Colors[®], we can support powdered beverages that require color with good plating ability. Our high strength powders also offer excellent cost-in-use, without compromising on quality.

In addition to traditional excipients, our solution-driven portfolio includes ingredients enabling an efficient production and securing optimum bioavailability of drugs, just like we also offer a wide range of innovative science-based health ingredients.

Nutrition

Oral Rehydration Solution (ORS)

Potassium chloride / sodium chloride is an essential component of ORS / electrolyte-containing beverages. Sodium and potassium salts play an important role in balancing the water and electrolyte balance in the body.

Electrolyte-containing beverages with sodium and potassium salts are used to compensate for electrolyte loss after dehydration. Besides special drinks for athletes, standardized electrolyte solutions are ideal for restoring the electrolyte balance to the necessary equilibrium after severe electrolyte loss (e.g., diarrhea, vomiting, heat stroke).

Potassium chloride and sodium chloride from K+S are used, among other things, for the production of the World Health Organization (WHO) ORS drinking solution.
